

Why Physicians should refer to Aging Life Care Professionals® ...

when looking for excellence in comprehensive services for aging or disabled adults and their families

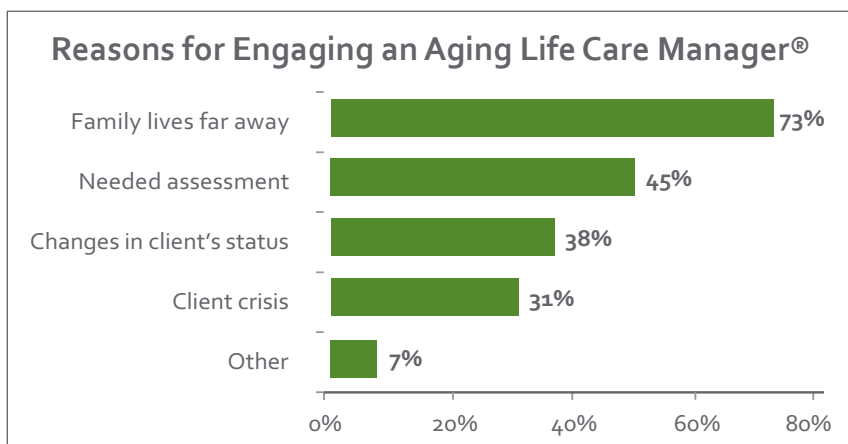

Our guidance leads families to the actions and decisions that ensure quality care and an optimal life for those they love, reducing worry, stress, and time off work for family caregivers.

How does an Aging Life Care Professional® benefit you?

- Saves you and your staff time answering phone calls from families about non-medical issues or repeatedly explaining diagnoses and tests.
- Gives you peace of mind — orders are followed up on, medications are taken as prescribed, or you are notified.
- Allows you to make more effective and efficient decisions — you have a set of professional eyes and ears in the home who can succinctly inform you of the important data and professionally receive your response.

How does an Aging Life Care Professional® benefit your clients?

Most Common Services Performed by Aging Life Care Professionals®
Assessing, monitoring, and updating responsible party on client's needs	89%
Managing crises, safety concerns, or conflicts in the client's life	80%
Coordinating and advocating for the client's medical concerns	75%
Providing support and services that preserve the client's independence	58%
Providing mental health referrals, counseling, and emotional support for the client	34%
Offering activities that enhance the client's social support and quality of life	30%
Providing impaired memory support and services	26%
Completing paperwork associated with the client's insurance, benefits, or finances	25%

FINDINGS

97%
of Responsible Party respondents felt that engaging an Aging Life Care Manager had a positive overall effect on the client.

99%
said that engaging Aging Life Care Manager services had a positive effect on their own lives.

Aging Life Care™ is not covered by Medicare or private insurance, however, if you trust us with a referral, we promise to connect your patients with meaningful resources.

Visit us at aginglifecare.org for qualified, experienced professionals.